

WAS READY WITH AN ANSWER

How Lincoln's Ingenious Mind Framed Effective Reply to Objections Against Emancipation.

PERHAPS no story of Lincoln's was told under graver conditions and with more emphasis than that which closed the famous interview on the steamer River Queen, at Hampton Roads, between Mr. Lincoln, Secretary Seward and the peace commission of the Confederacy. The discussion had reached its kernel, slavery.

The southern argument, in all its impressive force, was brought forward. If the south were to consent to a peace on the basis of emancipation of the slaves, the entire structure of southern society would be plunged into irretrievable ruin. No work would be done, nothing would be cultivated; whites and blacks alike must starve, for the freed slaves, accustomed to idleness, would undoubtedly abstain wholly from labor.

The president waited for Seward to make some effective rejoinder. But the experienced statesman could find no cogent reply. At length, Lincoln framed the answer, in a story culminating in a phrase that gave common currency to a colloquialism, coined among the log cabins of negroes and poor whites.

"Gentlemen," addressing the commissioners, "your statement of the conditions reminds me of a man out in Illinois, by the name of Case, who undertook to raise a very large herd of hogs. But, as they grew, it became too big a job to feed them. Finally he planted an immense field in potatoes; and, as soon as the potatoes were fairly grown, turned the whole herd into the field. The hogs did their own digging, and he leaned over the fence, proud of his idea. A neighbor came along.

"Well, well, Mr. Case," he remarked, "this is a grand idea. But butchering time is 'way off in December, and the frost comes easily. Before you are ready to kill those hogs, the ground will be frozen a foot deep."

"Case scratched his head, and thought it over; but there was only one answer, and he gave it.

"I suppose I'll go pretty hard with his snouts; but all I can see for it is, root, hog, or die."

At the Nuts in Church.

The Sunday before Michaelmas day saw, until recent times, a curious custom at Kingston-Thames. The parishioners attended in force at the parish church, armed with nuts, which they cracked and ate throughout the service. "Nut cracking," however, was not peculiar to Kingston. Goldsmith makes his "Vicar of Wakefield" say of his parishioners: "They kept up the Christmas Carol, sent true-love knots on Valentine morning, ate pancakes at Shrove-tide, and religiously cracked nuts on Michaelmas eve."—London Chronicle

ORDINANCE NO. 176.

An Ordinance Restricting to Thirty in Number Saloons in the City of Bisbee.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Bisbee:

Section 1. After March 7th, 1912, not more than thirty saloons or places where intoxicating liquors are sold at retail, shall be permitted in the City of Bisbee; provided that all persons who shall be lawfully engaged in such business on that day and who shall thereafter comply with all regulations governing said business shall be permitted to continue therein, until their voluntary withdrawal, and may, with the permission of the Common Council change the place at which the business is conducted, and assign their rights to continued license.

Section 2. New applications for licenses when there shall be less than thirty saloons in this City shall be acted upon in the order of priority, unless the Council shall for good cause otherwise determine.

Section 3. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication as by law provided.

Passed and adopted the 6th day of February, 1912.

Approved the 9th day of February, 1912.
